Are you a Parent with an intellectual disability?

We are a Self Advocacy Group for parents with an intellectual disability. The Positive Powerful Parents Self Advocacy Group (PPP) provides:

- Support
- Respect
- Meetings
- Shared experiences
- A safe place to talk

The Positive Powerful Parents Self Advocacy Group is run by and for parents with an intellectual disability.

The group meets the first Friday of each month at Reinforce Inc., Ross House in Flinders Lane, Melbourne.

Our Group is important

The Positive Powerful Parents Self Advocacy Group will work to make sure that parents with an intellectual disability:

- have the same rights as any other parent in the community and not be treated differently,
- receive the support, education, and resources we need to keep our children at home,
- have the same right to reunification with our children as any other parent and to be provided with the support, education and resources to make this happen,
- know they are not alone,
- be treated with respect, and
- get the support and funding we need to have good levels of access to our children when they do not live with us.

Mission Statement

The Positive Powerful Parents Self Advocacy Group is a self advocacy group run by and for parents with an intellectual disability.

We strongly believe that every parent with an intellectual disability has their own unique way of parenting, and the voice of parents with a disability needs to be heard and actioned.

How and Why PPP began

We started because of the number of parents with an intellectual disability who do not get the support they need to keep their children.

What we offer

- Support and a Safe Place
- Meetings to discuss changes needed
- Connection to others with a similar experience
- Meetings with Government and Advocates to help
